Just a HOME GIRL!

MELISSA'S EYES WERE large, blue and limpid. Her hair was golden, silky, and soft. And her lips were pink and thoughtfully pursed as she fixed her attention on Josh Harris. For Melissa to fix her attention on anything was considered quite unusual, but Josh was unusually important to Melissa.

"The big dope!" she said to herself. She said it lovingly, for Melissa adored Josh. She adored everything about him, from his looks to the big desk at which he worked. Sometimes, he left his office door open and then Melissa would fall into a blue-eyed reverie of love, fixing her gaze on him so intently, that he would get up and shut the door again.

"I guess executives are always worried," Melissa thought. This thought, too, was quite an accomplishment for her, since Melissa rarely thought in sentences or ideas. But where Josh was concerned, she would do anything.

He was worried, as a matter of fact. And Melissa knew why, having spent half the morning at the water cooler in conversation with Cis Marks of the bookkeeping department. "It's because Mr. Trumpett is coming tomorrow," Cis had said, as though that explained everything.

"Who's that?" Melissa had asked.

"Only your boss!" Cis had glanced at Melissa, half in scorn at her dumbness, half in envy at the blissfulness of her ignorance. "Only our boss, I should say! Didn't you know this was just one office in a national chain of offices, Melissa?"

"Mmmmm," Melissa had answered vaguely. "So why worry?"

It had long been felt around the office that Melissa was not of the brightest, but that question established her, beyond a doubt, as the dizziest dame in creation!

"Mr. Trumpett owns everything," Cis had explained patiently. "Once a year, he gets around to each branch of his company and looks it over! And if anything's wrong, he doesn't waste time! Boom! Fired!"

"Who's fired?"

Cis had thrown up her hands in sheer defeat. "The manager, you goof! The guy what runs the place! In this case, Josh Harris!"

Melissa had suddenly awakened to the idea that perhaps Mr. Trumpett's visit of inspection was important, after all! And if she could do anything to help Josh, she certainly would!

That evening, she'd gone home and thought and thought about it! The idea seemed to be to impress Mr. Trumpett with the way the office was run. That much she had clear. Furthermore, Mr. Trumpett seemed to be a pretty tough, shrewd man.

And then, in a blaze of inspiration, Melissa thought of something! How lucky it was that it was Thursday night! Most of the stores were open and she could buy everything she needed and charge the whole thing to the company. It would solve everything. Mr. Trumpett would be impressed, Josh would be saved...promoted, perhaps...and he might even...even...

Melissa's heart melted as she thought of the possibility that Josh might return her love. In the department store, it was hard to fix her attention on the curtains and curtain rods. How much nicer to think of being in Josh's arms...of being kissed...

The next day, the day of Mr. Trumpett's dreaded visit, Melissa had come to the office laden with bulky parcels and closely followed by a worshipful young man equally laden with parcels. She stored everything in an unused cloakroom and went to see Josh.

"D-Day!" she said brightly. "Good morning!"

"Grrr!" It wasn't a real growl, but mighty close to it.

"I know why you're worried," Melissa started to say words of soothing tenderness, but Josh would have none of it.

"I'm not worried!" The frown between his eyes deepened into a scowl.

"I'm bright and chipper. Go away!"

"But I can help you, really I can!" Melissa yearned to put her arms around Josh and smooth his hair. "You see, I have a plan! I know it will impress Mr. Trumpett and..."

At the sound of the august name, Josh leaped from his chair, took Melissa firmly by the elbows and ushered her out of his office. "You are a very pretty girl," he remarked coldly, "but your supply of gray matter is low. Go away and leave the thinking for people who know how!"

Her elbows still tingling from Josh's touch, Melissa made for the unused cloakroom. "He's too upset to listen right now," she thought, "so I'll just go ahead with my plan anyhow. I'll just be careful not to get in his way!"

The task of avoiding Josh was made easier for Melissa by his locking himself into his office with a set of ledgers and remaining there almost all morning. It was not until the receptionist buzzed him a special signal indicating Mr. Trumpett's arrival, that Josh emerged.

And what he saw gave him a near heart-attack. Every window in the office was curtained in fluffy, frilly gingham of a loud pink-and-white check.

On each window sill, stood a row of sassy geranium pots, their flowers repeated in the design of the curtain tiebacks. A desk had been cleared off and instead of the customary typewriter and papers, it supported a tray of teacups and saucers and saucers of frosted cookies. And, at the door, under the feet of Mr. Trumpett himself, lay a hooked rug with the word "Welcome" worked into it!

Josh saw red as he went white. Mr. Trumpett's face turned an interesting purple. In fact, the whole office was a study in color as Josh bellowed, "Who did this? Speak up! Who?"

Melissa stepped forward, smiling angelically. "I did!"

"Melissa...L...you..." Josh was choking, positively choking.

"Splendid! Splendid girl!" Mr. Trumpett, who had not been known to smile in ten years, was chuckling hoarsely. "See what you mean here! Your office is your home away from home! Dress it up! Make it comfortable...pretty! Makes you want to spend more time here! Shows a real interest! Must make a note to adopt this policy in other branches! Good thinking here, Harris, real organization! I said...Harris!"

Harris was not listening to Mr. Trumpett at all. He was holding a golden-haired girl in his arms and kissing her, in a businesslike fashion...or was it unbusinesslike?

"You're just no good in an office," he was murmuring tenderly.

The golden-haired girl made a purring sound.

"And I can't fire you," the manager was saying, as he planted a number of kisses over her face. "So I guess the only thing to do is marry you! Because you certainly are a home girl!"

Unashamedly, Melissa kissed him back. "I certainly are," she agreed. "Am!"

I could fill page after page of this magazine with enthusiastic reports from men all over the entire world! But what you want to know is—
"What can Atlas do for ME?"

Just give me 15 minutes a day of your spare time—right in the privacy of your own home. That's all I ask. Even in that short time I'll start giving RESULTS. The kind of results that you can SEE, FEEL, and MEASURE with a tape! And there's no cost to you if I fail!

I can broaden your shoulders, strengthen your back, develop your whole muscular system, INSIDE and OUTSIDE! I can add inches to your chest, give you a vise-like grip, make those legs of yours lithe and powerful. I can shoot new strength into your old backbone, exercise those inner organs, help you cram your body so full of pep, vigor and red-blooded vitality that you won't feel there's even "standing room" left for weakness and that lazy feeling! Before I get through with you I'll have your whole frame "measured" to a nice new, beautiful suit of muscle! And you'll be using the method which many great athletes use for keeping in condition — prize fighters, wrestlers, baseball and football players, etc.

What's My Secret?

"Dynamic Tension"! That's the ticket! The identical natural method that I myself developed to change my body from the scrawny, skinny-chested weakling I was at 17 to my present super-man physique!

Thousands of other fellows are becoming marvelous physical specimens—my way. I give you NO gadgets or contraptions to fool with. When you have learned to develop your Strength through "Dynamic Tension" you can laugh at artificial muscle-makers.
